

Trauma-Informed Practice eLearning Guide

- Child traumatic stress refers to the _____ and _____ responses of a child to events that threaten the physical integrity of the _____ or _____.
- A single traumatic event that is limited in time is called _____.
- _____ refers to the experience of multiple traumatic events. _____ is considered a form of chronic trauma.
- _____ is a term used by some experts to describe both the exposure to chronic trauma – usually caused by adults entrusted with the child’s care such as parents or caregivers – and the immediate and long-term impact of such exposure on the child.
- Children who have been exposed to repeated stressful events within an environment of abuse and neglect are more/ less vulnerable to experiencing traumatic stress.
- What is the percentage of children who were maltreated by one or both parents? _____. BONUS: What kind of trauma does this relate to? _____
- The impact of a potentially traumatic event is determined by both the _____ nature of the event (what happened) and the child’s _____ response to it (how the event was perceived).
- Areas of development and functioning that are impacted by complex trauma are:
 1. _____

2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____
6. _____
7. _____
8. _____

- How does trauma impact the different parts of the brain?

1. Hippocampus:

2. Corpus callosum:

3. Cerebellum:

4. Prefrontal cortex:

5. Amygdala:

6. Cortisol Levels:

- What are some of the reactions of children exposed to trauma in each of the developmental stages?

Infants

Preschool and young
school-age children

School-age children

Adolescents

- A _____ is anything that reminds a person of past traumatic experiences. This can include _____, _____, _____, _____, and _____.
- CSEC stands for Commercially Sexually Exploited Children.
- _____ has consistently been identified as a risk factor in commercial sex.
- CSEC is associated with: _____, _____, _____, _____, _____, _____.
- LGBTQ stands for _____.

- What are three ways that social workers can help support LGBTQ youth?

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____
