

Richard Knecht, M.S., is a consultant and trainer working with state agencies, counties, and community-based agencies, to design and implement Katie A., Continuum of Care Reform (CCR) and related reform efforts. He recently served as the state's first transformation manager, supporting Department of Health Care Services (DHCS) and California Department of Social Services (CDSS) in building collaborative and shared process, designing effective community centered services, and in better engaging youth and families served by those systems. Knecht served for 10 years as Placer County's director of Children's System of Care, and has worked with youth and families for more than 27 years in government, for-profit, and non-profit organizations. He co-authored the 2002 publication, "Family-Works: Integrating Family in Residential Treatment." He is past board chair at iFoster, the nation's online resource portal for kinship and foster caregivers.