

Christine Mattos, M.S.O.D, P.C.C., integrates more than 20 years of professional experience in both public and private sector leadership development, organizational effectiveness, and coaching. In addition to founding the Coaching Leadership Institute to support organizations by coaching individuals and groups in key leadership positions, she has served in a variety of positions, such as change management consultant for a global management consulting firm, consultant with public schools and school districts, and as the statewide training manager for the Child Abuse Prevention Center/Prevent Child Abuse California. She has provided services to organizations like AmeriCorps, Head Start/Early Head Start California Department of Social Services, and most recently, she served as the workforce management and professional development chief at California Department of Social Services. Mattos is credentialed and certified as a professional executive/leadership coach, and is skilled as a facilitator, mediator, and has completed a certificate in Co-Active Leadership (through the Coaches Training Institute). She earned her master's degree of organizational development from Pepperdine University and her professional certified coach certification from International Coach Federation. Mattos currently supports directors and managers in organizations with achieving success through her expertise in leadership development, implementation science, and change management.