

Jessica Richards, M.S., M.S.W., L.C.S.W., graduated from a specialized dual-master's program in child development and clinical social work from the Erikson Institute and Loyola University, Chicago, IL. Richards has more than 10 years of clinical experience with young children and families across a multitude of diagnostic categories. At Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, IL, she worked with severely emotionally distressed young children on the Inpatient Psychiatric Unit. Jessica has provided in-home, dyadic therapy to children 0-5 and families in South Central Los Angeles at a community mental health agency. She is currently serves as the infant mental health therapist on the Fostering Family Partnership Child Welfare Pilot, supervises birth to five clinical therapists in community mental health and provides high quality training for the training institute. Richards has a private practice in Pasadena, CA, where she treats young children and families. She consults and trains on a wide variety of clinical topics. She has been mentored by Dr. Connie Lillas in the Neurorelational Framework.