

Jane Tabor-Bane, M.S.W., is the child welfare specialist for the Resource Center for Family-Focused Practice, The Center for Human Services, UC Continuing and Professional Education. As the child welfare specialist, she provides technical assistance on state-wide projects relating to child abuse mandated reporting, child welfare, and child abuse prevention. She has over 25 years' experience working in a wide range of youth and family programs serving runaway and homeless youth and abused children and their families. She has previously worked as a supervisor and program specialist for the Child Protective Services, a juvenile court investigator, and managed a collaborative demonstration project for youth and families involved in both child welfare and juvenile probation.